Jefferson, Switzerland allocated $2.5M in road funds

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson and Switzerland counties were awarded more than $2.5 million combined in state matching funds for local road projects through Community Crossings, a component of the Governor's Next Roads program on Wednesday.

Jefferson County was allocated $1 million which County Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips said will be used to asphalt pave 13 miles of roads in various locations throughout the county. "This is a huge help to Jefferson County," he said, adding it "helps significantly to upgrading our existing road infrastructure needs."

Additionally, Madison Deputy Mayor Mindy McGee said the city is receiving $947,694.55 from the fund. "It is the full amount we requested," McGee said, noting the funds will be used as the city finalizes its plans for a $2 million road and sidewalk improvement plan.

Forty-five years after going to work for Madison Police Department on Aug. 29, 1976, Stephan is retiring. His last day was Friday — which coincides with his 70th birthday — when he steps down as a captain after serving as a shift manager since 2000.

Nuisance property still concern for commission

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Jefferson County Plan Commission had another face-to-face meeting with a Graham Township property owner the county is pushing to clean up his property located on West Polk Road at its meeting in Wednesday.

Lewis Handlon, 10218 West Polk Road, Lexington, returned to the plan commission for second consecutive month to report on progress.

Board President Warren Auxier said he had been by the property and said "some progress has been made but not a substantial amount of progress. It's getting to the point that there needs to be more progress made."

Auxier noted the problem has lingered for three years and recommended that County Surveyor Mike Pittman get an estimate on the cost for the county to clean up the property, which would result in a lien being placed on Handlon's property taxes to reimburse the county for costs. That action was tabled until the Commission's Dec. 7 meeting.

Pittman reported there are several other nuisance properties in the county and specifically mentioned some concerns in Brooksburg.

Pittman noted there is a Brooksburg property in which trash is strewn throughout, an issue he said the property owner blames on dogs getting into trash cans and dragging contents out. He noted there is another property there with four inoperable vehicles.

Board President Warren Auxier said he knew of a structure in Brooksburg "with the roof collapsing right in the center of town."

Auxier said he sees potential for Brooksburg, particularly with the new Brooksburg public access boat ramp to the Ohio River, a $1.2 million investment by the Department of Natural Resources completed in the fall of 2020.

"It would be nice to see it develop into the thriving town that it once was," Auxier said.

Meanwhile, the commission received a proposal from Taylor Siefker Williams Design Group LLC, of Indianapolis, to update the county's zoning and building ordinances. "We need to make sure they understand we just want to update the existing ordinances, and are not wanting to generate a new one," said County Commissioner David Bramer, who also serves on the plan commission.

More proposals were sought, but Taylor Siefker Williams Design Group LLC, was the only firm to respond. Bramer noted the company is familiar with Jefferson County in that it is the same firm that assisted the county with the comprehensive plan that was adopted earlier in the year.

There are specific areas in which plan commission members would like to see addressed. Auxier mentioned dealing with criteria for campgrounds and cabins.

Board member David Ferguson suggested giving consideration to road conditions and traffic and dealing LED lights that create "bright lights that are shining out more into neighbors," even though he was uncertain how that could be handled.

Auxier added that ordinances are needed to deal with solar and wind energy in the county. Lynette Anderson, zoning and planning secretary, agreed noting that solar development project are considering several farms in Saluda Township.

Elsewhere, the county's Board of Zoning Appeals, held a discussion about language in the findings of facts that board must consider when deciding on variances or conditional uses. In recent decisions, they noted that several double negatives in the wording are confusing responses. Board attorney Patrick Magrath recommended that the issue could be resolved if they changed their responses to "True" and "False" rather than "Yes' and "No."

Fool me twice, shame on me

Dear Annie: I've dated this woman for over five months.

Last year, she cheated on me with her ex. She broke it off with me and went back to him. They had problems, and we recently started talking again. She wants it to be casual and see what happens. We have sex and everything, and I'm starting to have feelings for her again.

She has said she misses the things we used to do and sends me kissing emojis when we text. I think I see signs of her wanting more, but I'm not really sure.

What do I do? I want to bring it up, but I'm afraid to because I don't want to ruin it if there is a chance. Casual dating and I don't mix too well. I want and need more than casual. — Cautiously Optimistic

Dear Cautiously: You can't ruin something you don't have.

Now's the time for a serious conversation with this woman to see what she's looking for and compare it to your expectations for the relationship.

If you want more than a casual thing and she only gives you loose answers and no commitment, you're just setting yourself up to be more disappointed and hurt down the line the longer you stay with her.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

And on the point of commitment, don't forget she has already been unfaithful to you once before. As Maya Angelou said: "When people show you who they are, believe them the first time."

Dear Annie: My 18-year-old daughter recently started college and is living on campus many hours away from her dad and me. We have a good relationship and talk weekly, but I am worried about her current choices.

I am joint on her bank account, and recently, I saw a large transaction for a purchase at an adult "toy" store. I also know she has been buying and wearing risque clothing while out with friends late at night.

Although I know a lot of this is normal self-discovery, I am worried. I've been honest about the sex addiction (in general terms), and addictive behavior in general, that runs in our family, so she knows what she's up against if she's going down that rabbit hole.

She has been taught from a young age that physical intimacy is a gift from God, given for people who are married to truly give themselves to each other. She's on birth control (which our religion is against, but I can't stop her).

How do I help her through this? I respect her as a young adult (she's truly an awesome human being!), but I am seriously worried she may not realize the physical and mental harm that can come from casual sex and one-night stands (if that is, in fact, what's going on). — Letting Go Is Hard to Do

Dear Letting Go: It's hard for any parent to step aside and watch as their child makes decisions — and mistakes — that they wouldn't necessarily make themselves.

But as you said, your daughter is a young adult now, and she's responsible for making her own choices. It sounds like you two have a solid relationship with regular and open communication. Remind your daughter to keep safety in mind as she meets new people and explores her new home at school. Let her know that you are always there to talk or listen if she needs the support.

Replaced by newcomer

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have two very good friends who I go to breakfast with every Saturday. We are part of a monthly book club; we exercise together three times a week, and we attend the theater together, for which we have season tickets.

They are both widows. My husband, thank goodness, is still alive and healthy. Lately, I have been getting vibes that they are trying to replace me with another widow. I have said no to invites to different places, such as craft shows, that I really didn't want to attend. But now they are making plans to go to dinners with another widow, which I found out about just by overhearing the discussion.

They did not ask me to go until I asked them about it, and it is something that I would have loved to do. I hesitate to accept the invite because I don't know if they really want me along or if they are just being polite.

Am I being overly sensitive? Or do I have reason to be concerned? This is not the first time that this sort of thing has happened. Should I ask them about it or just act like it doesn't bother me? — Feeling Left Out

Dear Feeling Left Out: No one likes to feel excluded, but once we understand the "why" of why we are not included, it can help ease the hurt feelings. Your friends all lost their husbands, while you have a wonderful husband at home.

Just take that fact in for a moment. Their "taking in" or including another widow has nothing to do with whether they like you or not and everything to do with the fact that they understand the pain of losing a husband and want to express empathy to their fellow widow.

Confronting them about it would not be beneficial. Focus on being grateful that they are your friends and that you have fun with them.

Dear Annie: I loved your answer to "Loss," the woman who, in her 60s, was grieving the loss of so many of her friends.

This brought to mind a helpful thought that was shared with my 90-year-old mother by her doctor. She was telling him about having lost seven very close family members and friends that year. He responded by saying, "This is just the price we must pay for a long, joyful life filled with people we love." — Great Advice

Dear Great Advice: Thank you for sharing the wonderful wisdom of your mother's doctor.

3 face drug charges; juvenile arrested on burglary count

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison Police arrested three Madison residents on narcotic changes early morning Friday after a traffic stop on Lanier Drive at approximately 1:36 a.m.

John W. Roberts

Maxine Jean Uebel

Jerry Dale Pike

Jerry Dale Pike, 55, John W. Roberts 56, and Maxine Jean Uebel, 43, all of Madison, were arrested on narcotics charges after MPD Patrolman Curtis Shelpman executed a traffic stop on a vehicle driven by Pike in the 2100 block of Lanier Drive in which Roberts and Uebel were passengers. A driving status check on Pike found that his driver's license was suspended.

Madison Patrolman Ben Flint, and his K-9 partner, Meko, were called to the scene to have the drug dog conducted an open air sniff of the vehicle. Meko gave a positive alert for the presence of narcotics and several packages containing a white crystal-type substance which tested positive as methamphetamine were found during the subsequent search. In addition, officers located syringes and paraphernalia associated with the use of drugs.

Pike was charged with Possession of Methamphetamine and Possession of a Syringe, both Level 6 felonies. Roberts was charged with Possession of Methamphetamine and Uebel is charged with Possession of Methamphetamine and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor.

All three were lodged in the Jefferson County Jail on $1,000 full cash bonds.

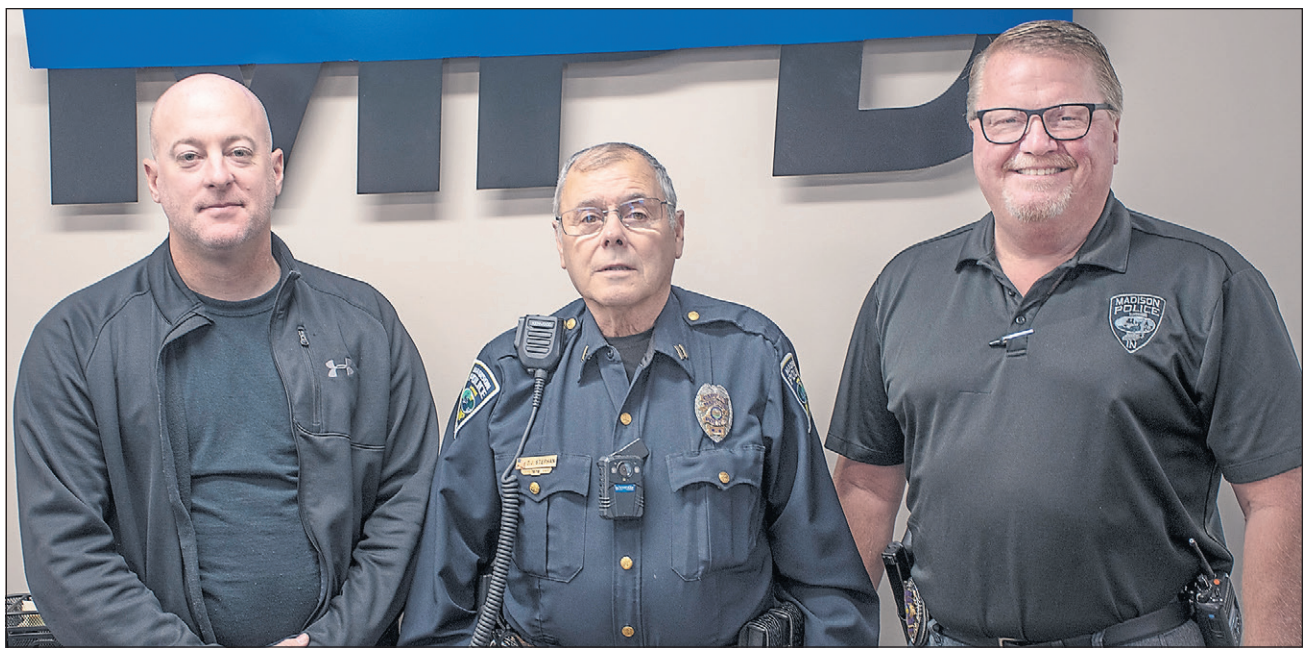
Lt. Season Jackson and Patrolman Josh Nolan assisted with the investigation.

Earlier on Thursday, a 14-year old juvenile was detained and charged with a theft at the Murphy's USA gas station, 553 Ivy Tech Drive, that occurred Wednesday.

Information gathered at the scene of the burglary and during the subsequent investigation conducted by Detective Jeremey Perkins, identified a suspect in the burglary.

Patrol Officer Nichole Midgett, who initially responded to the burglary, and Perkins met with Madison Consolidated Schools Resource Officer Tim Armstrong as the investigation continued. Investigating officers recovered stolen property, including tobacco/nicotine products and money, from the suspect's residence.

The name of the suspect is being withheld as a juvenile.



Bob Demaree

stayed. I had no desire to go any place else," he said, noting he actually worked another 13 years past qualifying for a full pension.

Even though Stephan is retiring, he plans to come back and work part-time for Madison Police Department. The city adopted new regulations allowing former or retired officers — in good standing — to continue working part-time as patrol officers.

"I will no longer be a captain and have my leadership role. It will be different, but I will adjust," Stephan said. The closest former Madison police officer to Stephan in longevity is Bob Barnes, who was with the department 34 years from 1973 to 2007.

During his police career, Stephan has sometimes held off duty jobs like electrical work and carpentry, and he's driven a truck to supplement his income. That was particularly the case while helping his wife of 52 years, Onita Stephan, get through college and go on to teach at Anderson Elementary School.

But except for part-time police work, Stephan said in the future he doesn't plan to take on any other jobs or responsibilities. "I'm looking forward to having more free time," Stephan, who resides on a farm near Canaan, said.

Stephan has worked under seven Madison mayors beginning with Warren Rucker in 1976. And he's worked under 10 police chiefs with Bob Wolf being the longest tenured at 13 years under former Mayor Al Huntington. Stephan has served under current Police Chief John Wallace, which is in his second stint in that role, twice.

"Dan has been the glue of the department for 45 years," said Wallace. "His leadership is second to none. He's someone other officers can look up to and admire. We've been fortunate to have him as long as we have. He will truly be missed. This is bittersweet."

Wallace said he's not been looking forward to Stephan retiring because he's been such an outstanding police officer. The department had birthday cake for Stephan Friday with plans to celebrate his retirement next month.

"It's coming to an end, but I'm happy for him. He deserves it," Wallace said.

anglers and co-anglers and their families who stay, eat and shop in host communities. The events would include a spring tournament in May and the Classic in October.

Dattilo said the Classic is Indiana Bass Federation's "biggest event of the year" and 90% of the costs for the event are absorbed by Indiana Bass Federation. The JCBT's $5,000 contribution actually goes back into community to help pay for catering an awards banquet, entertainment and other festivities held locally during the event weekend.

"This is a no-brainer," said JCBT board member Curtis Chatham. "This is right in line with where we want to go" because of what the Indiana Bass Federation tournament will do to bring visitors to Jefferson County.

FUNDS

In Switzerland County, the county highway department received $611,493.75, which clerk Carla Armstrong said will be used for asphalt paving the full length of both Tapps Ridge and Log Lick roads in Switzerland County.

To qualify for the funds, local governments must provide local matching dollars based on population. Jefferson and Switzerland counties have to provide a 25% match while Madison 's match is 50%.

Gov. Eric Holcomb and Indiana Department of Transportation Commissioner Joe McGuinness anounced 218 Indiana cities, towns and counties had received a combined $101.9 million.

"Community Crossings continues to have a transformative effect on communities across Indiana" Holcomb said. "The partnership between the state and local governments is empowering Hoosier cities, towns and counties to invest more and take on bigger projects than ever before to modernize their local transportation systems to meet the demand of our growing economy."

The Community Crossings initiative has provided more than $1 billion in state matching funds for local construction projects since 2016. Communities submitted applications for funding during a highly competitive call for projects held in January. Applications were evaluated based on need and current conditions and impacts to safety and economic development. Funding for Community Crossings comes from the state's local road and bridge matching grant fund.

"Community Crossings is one of the most important tools available to our local partners to support their efforts to improve local roads and bridges," INDOT Commissioner Joe McGuinness said. "Rebuilding and improving local roads, while also addressing safety needs, promotes growth and enhances the business environment and quality of place across Indiana."

KHSAA Gridiron Playoffs

Defense carries Carroll to 14-6 win over Gallatin

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Carroll County's defense rose to the occasion on a night when points were hard to come by and lifted the Panthers to a 14-6 win over Gallatin County in the opening round of the KHSAA's Class 2A Gridiron Bowl Playoffs Thursday at home.

The rare Thursday night game — moved from Friday due to a shortage of officials — saw game-time temperatures in the 40s but the two offenses were even colder. Carroll wasted a first and goal opportunity in the first quarter but was able to eek out a pair of scores that proved to be the difference.

"It's sloppy when but we'll take a sloppy win, A win's a win," Carroll coach Justin Franklin said. "Now we get a chance at a district title and that's all I care about right now."

The two teams had met two weeks ago in a game won easily by Carroll 48-16. Gallatin turned the ball over five times in that contest but the Wildcats weren't as generous this time.

A bad punt early in the first quarter gave Carroll a short field but the Panthers were unable to capitalize, getting stymied on the Gallatin 1-yard line. A possession later, Carroll scored on a 6-yard pass from Harrison Felts to Payton Williams for a 6-0 lead but the kick was blocked.

David Campbell

Carroll County running back Zayn Satchwell (with ball) drives through the Gallatin defense with some help from his teammates during the Panthers' football playoff win over Gallatin County on Thursday.

Although Carroll (7-4) spun its wheels offensively the rest of the first half, the defense was up to the task of keeping the Panthers in the game. Other than a game-tying 93-yard pitch and catch from quarterback Logan Hammond to Logan Riddle for a touchdown midway through the second quarter, Gallatin was held largely in check.

However, Carroll was unable to build on its lead as Gallatin shut down the vaunted Panther running attack. The game was tied 6-6 at halftime before the Panthers forced their will coming out of the break.

"(Gallatin) Coach (Tim) Browning had a great game plan. That six-man front, double setting the edge," Franklin said "We went old school on that first drive in the third and just took the snap and ran it straight down their throat. Sometimes that's the most effective."

The Panthers opened the third with their best drive of the night and it proved to be the game-winner. Starting on its own 34, Carroll marched down the field in just eight plays, culminating in a 2-yard touchdown run by Felts. A two-point pass from Felts to Spencer Vaught gave the Panthers a 14-6 lead.

Neither team as much as threatened to score again. Kenyion Mumphrey's rolling punts pinned Gallatin deep time after time and the Wildcats simply couldn't move the ball against the Panther defense. Gallatin's last gasp ended on the Carroll 45-yard line and a series later, the Panthers collected two first downs to run out the clock.

Carroll County's three-headed monster of Felts, Vaught and Zayn Satchwell combined for 179 yards but neither back went over the century mark. Felts led the way with 85 yards on 19 carries while Vaught had 44 yards on 10 attempts and Satchwell had 40 yards on 12 rushes.

Carroll advances to the district championship next week for the third time in four years where it will face the winner between Friday's matchup of top-seeded Walton-Verona (7-3) and No. 4 Owen County (3-8). During the regular season, Walton defeated Carroll 24-7 on Oct. 1 while Carroll topped Owen 28-19 on Oct. 16.

Madison offense lacking in loss

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

AUSTIN — Madison's offense never got on track and the end result was a 45-38 loss at Austin in the Cubs' girls basketball season opener Wednesday on the road.

Madison shot just 26% from the floor and wasn't much better from the free-throw line, hitting just four of 13 attempts. Throw in 24 turnovers, many of which were not forced, and it all added up to a long frustrating opening night.

"It wasn't a lot of throwaway turnovers. It was a lot of travels a lot of double-dribbles and the way I take it is this should make them so freakin' hungry," Madison coach Sonja Bowyer said. "Austin had a great game plan and tonight they were better than us, but nine times out of 10 that's a game we should win. But this just makes us work that much harder and it's going to be that much more sweeter when it works."

Madison (0-1) led only twice in the game — both times only briefly — and it took the Cubs more than two minutes to score at the start of the game. Meanwhile, Austin jumped out to a 9-0 lead thanks to a pair of 3-pointers by Mayci Furnish, the last of which turned into a four-point play after she was fouled on the basket.

Still, Madison was never out of the game thanks in large part to its defense. The Cubs forced 26 turnovers on the night and were always within striking range, but the offense could never find a groove.

Trailing 26-23 entering the fourth quarter, Madison took the lead on a pair of Cadence Traylor 3-pointers that were sandwiched around a basket by the Eagles' Alexus Hargrave to put the Cubs ahead 29-28 with 7:05 to play. But that lead proved to be short-lived and Madison's last of the night.

After a timeout, Austin re-took the lead on an Erin Lee 3-pointer and never looked back, scoring nine-straight points as part of a 15-2 run that allowed the Eagles to build a 43-31 margin with 1:48 to go. Madison mounted a short rally in the closing minute, getting four points from Taylor Lynch and a trey from Alaina Kelley, but it wasn't nearly enough.

Madison's Cadence Traylor (10) leaps to defend a pass from Austin's Mayci Furnish (33) during the Cubs' season opener Wednesday on the road.

While Madison was struggling to hit free throws, Austin was busy icing the game at the line, going 11-for-16 on the night. Cameran Cahall scored 10 points to lead the Cubs while Lynch and Kelley scored eight each and Traylor and Casey Dyer scored six each. Mallory Buckel had 11 points and Furnish 10 for Austin.

Madison returns to action tonight when it hosts Franklin County in its home opener. The Cubs then head to Lawrenceburg on Monday.

Early hole too big for Southwestern in loss to Henryville

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Southwestern dug itself a 16-2 hole early and was unable to dig out, falling 36-30 at Henryville in the Rebels' girls basketball season opener on Thursday.

Missed shots — both from the floor and at the foul line — coupled with foul trouble doomed the Rebels.

After the slow start, Southwestern recovered and trailed only 21-16 at halftime and 27-23 after three quarters, but the Rebels could never get over the hump.

Trinity McLain opened her senior season with 12 points to lead the Rebels while Ashley Fulton added nine.

Southwestern, now 0-1, travels to Rising Sun today for a non-conference encounter. The Rebels then host Oldenburg Academy on Friday, Nov. 12 in their home opener.

Fourth-quarter rally lifts Shawe over CAI

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Shawe mounted a frantic fourth-quarter rally and then claimed an overtime win over Christian Academy of Indiana 30-27 in the Hilltoppers' girls basketball season opener Thursday in New Albany.

Shawe managed just nine points through three quarters and entered the fourth trailing 23-9. Led by freshman Ava Turner's 10 points, the Hilltoppers came all the way back in the fourth and tied the score 25-25 on Turner's free throw with two seconds to play.

Autumn Lathrem gave the Hilltoppers the lead with a basket in the extra session and Allison Knoebel hit two free throws to push that margin to three. Knoebel's free throw with one second left then iced the win.

Turner finished the game with 13 points to lead all scorers in her first varsity contest while Knoebel had seven points and senior Lina Leatherman scored six and had nine rebounds.

Leah Stevens led Christian Academy with nine points.

Shawe, now 1-0 on the season, travels to Class A No. 4 Jac-Cen-Del on Tuesday.

Rodgers sought treatments instead of COVID-19 vaccine

BY BARRY WILNER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Green Bay Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers said Friday he sought alternative treatments instead of the NFL-endorsed COVID-19 vaccinations because of an allergy he has to ingredients in two of the FDA-approved shots.

Speaking on SiriusXM's "Pat McAfee Show," Rodgers said: "I'm not an anti-vax, flat-earther. I have an allergy to an ingredient that's in the mRNA vaccines. I found a long-term immunization protocol to protect myself and I'm very proud of the research that went into that."

Rodgers, who has been tested daily as part of NFL protocols for the unvaccinated, came up positive for the coronavirus on Wednesday. He said he didn't feel well on Thursday but was much better on Friday.

He can't rejoin the Packers for 10 days, missing Sunday's game at Kansas City. Rodgers must have a negative test to return to the team on Nov. 13.

Rodgers noted that on the CDC's website, "it says should you have an allergy to any of the ingredients, you should not get one of the mRNA vaccines. So those two (Moderna and Pfizer) were out already."

He said with some of the public issues involving the Johnson & Johnson vaccine — clotting issues and his "hearing of multiple people who had had adverse events around getting the J&J ... the J&J shot was not even an option at that point."

His research led him to a treatment he did not detail, and he said the NFL was aware of the treatment protocol he was using, which took "multiple months."

"The league was fully aware of it upon my return to the Packers (in August)," Rodgers said. "It was at that point that I petitioned them to accept my immunization under their vaccination protocol."

That petition and a subsequent appeal were denied by the NFL, players' union and independent infectious disease consultants.

"And I also said, how come there's no exemption for medical exemptions, religious exemptions, pre-existing conditions?," Rodgers added. "And they basically said those are all basically exempted but you would be put in the non-vaccinated category."

The league did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Rodgers also told McAfee he has concerns about potential fertility issues

Hanover men have little trouble with Bluffton

BY JORDAN BEAR

Hanover men's soccer cruised to a 4-2 victory over Bluffton in the semifinals of the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference tournament on Wednesday at home.

Contrary to a regular season matchup that saw Hanover squeeze out a 2-1 win in overtime, the Panthers wasted no time in asserting dominance Wednesday as Luke Eppler collected a pass from Fernando Martin and fired the ball into the net to give Hanover a 1-0 lead in just the second minute.

Hanover doubled its lead later in the first half in the 38th minute when Joao Domenici scored for a 2-0 cushion at halftime. Josh Hughes then added on in the 55th minute to push the Panthers ahead 3-0.

Bluffton finally got on the board on a goal by Dalton Taynor in the 58th minute, but Domenici answered with his second goal to make it 4-1.

Hanover then went to its bench at that point and closed out the win with Bluffton adding a late goal for the final 4-2 margin.

For head coach Matt Wilkerson, the quick start was exactly what the team needed.

"Luke got a great goal early. He's put himself into position all year long to get shots and he got us going and then we got a second great goal which really gave us a lot of confidence," Wilkerson said. "Give credit to Bluffton though. They never gave up and played for 90 minutes which is why they're in the semifinals. They're a tough team so it was a very nice win for us."

Stephanie Hellmann

Hanover goalie Yoann Kinanga leaps for the ball during the Panthers' Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference soccer tournament win over Bluffton on Wednesday. The Panthers host Defiance at 1 p.m. today for the HCAC championship and a bid to the NCAA Division III soccer tourney.

Wilkerson also praised his team for quickly responding after Bluffton scored its first goal.

"That gave them some momentum in thinking maybe they can make a comeback but we have done a great job all year long in responding to tough moments," Wilkerson said. "Great response by our team and just a total team effort in the victory."

Hanover (13-4-1) will now play for the HCAC championship today when it goes for its second title in three years. The second-seeded Panthers will host the finals at 1 p.m. after No. 4 seed Defiance (11-11) upset top-seeded Rose-Hulman 1-0 on Wednesday night.

"We're excited to play on Saturday. We get two more days of practice and at least one more game with hopefully more to come after," said Wilkerson, whose team defeated Defiance 1-0 earlier in the season. "We'll be ready to go and hopefully we can bring a trophy home."

The HCAC champion on Saturday also advances to the men's NCAA Division III soccer tourney with the HCAC automatic bid to the postseason.

Hanover's Bryn Rolfsen (18) works against Rose-Hulman defenders Grace Hobson (21) and Kyra Hicks in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference soccer tournament semifinals on Wednesday. Hanover plays at top-seeded Mount St. Joseph today for the HCAC championship and a bid to the NCAA Division III women's soccer tourney.

Hanover women edge Rose 2-1 to reach HCAC finals

BY JORDAN BEAR

Hanover women's soccer defeated Rose-Hulman 2-1 in a tough semifinals battle at the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference tournament Wednesday at home.

The Panthers were looking for a victory over Rose-Hulman after the two teams had played to a 1-1 draw just two weeks ago. In that first game, Hanover had to score a late goal just to salvage a draw. On Wednesday, the Panthers wasted little time getting on the board when Autumn Boothby collected a pass from Maggie Day and found the back of the net in the 9th minute to give the Panthers a 1-0 lead.

Just eight minutes later, Hanover seized control of the match with a goal by Kenzie DeLong to take a quick 2-0 lead.

"We played really well the first 30 minutes of the game. We played the way we trained and were on point in our execution," Hanover women's coach Jim Watts said. "Two really veteran goals by two of our leaders. For Kenzie, it was her first goal of the year. It was the goal of the season so far. She made a great run, got a great pass, and got a nice finish to give us a nice cushion early."

Rose-Hulman (12-3-2) didn't go away, holding possession for the majority of the final 15 minutes of the first half including a few opportunities. But Hanover's defense held strong and carried the 2-0 lead into the halftime break.

In the second half, Hanover controlled much of the possession early on before the Engineers tried to battle back over the last 30 minutes by controlling possession and gaining several good looks on goal before finally breaking through on a Kyra Hicks shot in the 65th minute to cut the Hanover lead to 2-1.

Although the Engineers maintained possession must of the second half, Hanover didn't give Rose many quality looks and the Panthers ran out the clock for the victory.

"Give Rose a lot of credit. They outplayed us in the last 30 minutes of the game. They got their goal and our kids persevered late," Watts said. "We got away from what we were doing early in the game but credit to Rose for their game plan but we're happy to be moving on."

Hanover (13-1-3) now moves on to the HCAC championship match on Saturday night to play at No. 1 seed Mount St. Joseph (13-7-1). Mount defeated Transylvania in a penalty kick shootout in Wednesday's other semifinal.

Hanover is the defending HCAC champion after winning the title back in the spring when the season was delayed by COVID. Due to virus considerations, there was no national tourney then, but a trip to the NCAA Division III tourney is back on the line for Saturday's winner.

"These seniors are going to graduate as the winningest seniors in program history but they've never played in the NCAA Tournament," Watts said. "Saturday is going to be tough and we know it's going to be a fight but our girls will be ready and hopefully we will bring some hardware home."

Hanover volleyball opens tourney with sweep of Anderson

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover volleyball rolled through Anderson in straight sets the opening round of the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference Tournament on Wednesday at home.

The Panthers were challenged in only one set while dominating the other two 25-15, 27-25, 25-11.

Emma Harmon had 11 kills and four digs for the Panthers while Maddie Edwards, Maura Dankoski and Adrianne Vance each had seven kills. Kelsey Ketcham had 29 assists and 12 digs, Casey Dunn had 15 digs, and Meredith Deckard had 13 digs.

Hanover, now 17-9 on the season, will take on top-seeded Earlham in the HCAC semifinals on Saturday at Earlham while Transylvania plays Mount St. Joseph in the second semifinal. The championship will be on Sunday at Earlham.

Taylor, ground game help Colts find easy path past Jets

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Carson Wentz threw three touchdown passes, Jonathan Taylor rushed for 172 yards and two scores and the Indianapolis Colts beat the New York Jets 45-30 on Thursday night.

Indy (4-5) finished with 260 yards rushing, the highest-single game total in the NFL this season in their first prime-time home game since December 2017.

"It takes the pressure off the pass game when you run like that," Colts coach Frank Reich said. "But you could just feel it early, you could feel us really dominating the line early."

New York starting quarterback Mike White injured his right forearm in the first quarter, four days after throwing for 405 yards and three TDs in his first NFL start. The Jets (2-6) have lost seven straight night games.

White watched the final three quarters from the sideline after throwing a 19-yard TD pass to Elijah Moore that tied the score at 7-7 late in the first quarter. Jets coach Robert Saleh said he was optimistic White — who stood on the sideline in the second half without his helmet — and Zach Wilson (knee) will both practice next week.

But after White went out, it was all Colts.

Taylor broke the tie with a nifty 21-yard TD run. When Jets running back Ty Johnson lost a fumble near midfield, Wentz quickly converted by throwing a 1-yard shovel pass to Jack Doyle for a 21-7 lead.

The Jets answered with a short field goal late in the first half, but Wentz countered with an 11-yard TD pass to Michael Pittman to make it 28-10 at the half.

Wentz opened the second-half scoring with a 2-yard scoring pass to offensive lineman Danny Pinter, and Taylor sealed the win with a 78-yard sprint to make it 42-10.

Josh Johnson, White's replacement, threw for a career-high 317 yards and had a career-best three touchdown passes in the final 18 minutes — his first TD throws since Dec. 22, 2018.

"Josh, thought he did an awesome job coming in, running the offense exactly the way it's supposed to be played," Saleh said. "Hitting the open receiver, just moving the chains."

Wentz was 22 of 30 with 272 yards. Nyheim Hines had six carries for 74 yards and one score while catching four passes for 34 yards.

Johnson finished 27 of 41 with an interception that sealed the win for the Colts. Moore caught seven passes for 84 yards and two scores.

STAT PACK

Jets: White was 7 of 11 with 95 yards and one score before leaving. ... Michael Carter's streak of two straight games with 100 yards from scrimmage ended. He had 13 carries for 49 yards and seven receptions for 37 yards. ... New York allowed Indy's runners to average 8.7 yards per carry.

Colts: Wentz has thrown multiple TD passes in six straight games and is 2-0 all-time against the Jets. ... Taylor has 2,082 yards from scrimmage in his career. He's also passed Alan Ameche (1,819 yards) for the fourth-highest rushing total by an Indy player in his first two seasons.

INJURY REPORT

Jets: TE Tyler Kroft (chest) and S Marcus Maye (Achilles tendon) left and didn't return. Saleh said it "wasn't looking good" on Maye. ... Wilson (knee) and WR Corey Davis (hamstring) each sat out for a second straight game.

Colts: Four-time Pro Bowl WR T.Y. Hilton missed the game four days after hitting his head hard on the ground and entering the concussion protocol. ... Turner hits 7 3s, has 25 points in Pacers' win over Knicks

BY MARK AMBROGI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Myles Turner scored 25 points, hitting a career-high 7 of 10 3-pointers, and had 13 rebounds in the Indiana Pacers' 111-98 victory over the New York Knicks on Wednesday night.

Turner scored the first eight points of the game — and the Pacers never trailed. Caris LeVert added 21 points for Indiana.

"Myles was huge for us," LeVert said. "He had three blocks, guarding different guys on the switch. I don't know if we play that well or win that game without Myles."

RJ Barrett led New York with 23 points, and Julius Randle added 18 points and 14 rebounds. The Knicks pulled to 85-83 on Derrick Rose's basket, but the Pacers scored the next five points to regain control. The Pacers held a 31-23 edge in the third quarter.

"We knew if we made stops on that end, we could get easy stops in transition," LeVert said. "I think Malcolm Brogdon was preaching that. We held them under 100 points and they couldn't really score in the fourth quarter."

Turner left the game in the second quarter after taking a blow to the head from Julius Randle while taking a charge. He returned in the second half and opened with a 3-pointer in the first minute in the third quarter.

Indiana shot 45.3% in the first half to take a 59-50 lead. The Pacers made nine 3-pointers in the opening half, while the Knicks were 4 of 16. The Pacers outrebounded the Knicks 49-46.

"We have to do three things to put ourselves in position to win," Knicks coach Tom Thibodeau said. "We have to defend, rebound and keep our turnovers down. We did one of three. Our turnovers were down (10 turnovers). Our defense wasn't there. The rebounding wasn't there. We have to fix that part."

Kemba Walker made just 2 of 11 shots to finish with four points as the Knicks shot just 41.4%. The Pacers finished with 46.2%.

Indiana had a 16-5 edge in 3-pointers. Indiana's largest lead was 15 points.

TIP-INS

Knicks: Rose surpassed 12,000 career points with driving layup in the first quarter. Rose finished with 13 points. … Center Nerlens Noel made his season debut Wednesday after missing all four preseason games and the first seven regular-season games with a knee injury. Noel finished with two points and six rebounds in 18 minutes. ... The Knicks have now lost two in a row and this was their first loss on the road in four games.

Pacers: Brogdon returned to starting lineup after missing the last three games with strained left hamstring. Brogdon finished with 17 points, eight rebounds and seven assists. It was the first time all season that LeVert and Brogdon played together. "They both shoot the 3 well, they both attack the basket," Pacers coach Rick Carlisle said. "Seeing them together was a sight for sore eyes."" ... Pacers forward Domantas Sabonis, in foul trouble the entire game, fouled out with 10 points.

WARREN UPDATE

Carlisle said forward T.J. Warren is out of the boot and walking in sneakers. He had a positive scan on his injured foot but Carlisle said Warren is still weeks away from returning, not days.

DEFENSE MAKES DIFFERENCE

After the Knicks. cut the lead to 85-83 in the fourth quarter, the Pacers clamped down on defense.

Reds' Castellanos opts out of contract, becomes free agent

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Reds star outfielder Nick Castellanos exercised the opt-out clause in his contract and is a free agent, the team said Friday.

The Reds right fielder opted out of the final two years and $34 million remaining on his deal after having the best season of his nine-year career.

The team's announcement came one day after veteran catcher Tucker Barnhart was traded to the Detroit Tigers for an infield prospect.

The 29-year-old Castellanos was a first-time All-Star in 2021. He batted .309 with 34 home runs and led the Reds with 100 RBIs. He is a career .278 hitter with 168 homers in parts of nine seasons with the Reds, Tigers and Cubs.

He had signed a $64 million, four-year deal.

Castellanos entered a crowded free agent pool that includes former MVPs Freddie Freeman and Kris Bryant.

Reds trade Barnhart to Tigers for prospect

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds traded veteran Gold Glove catcher Tucker Barnhart to the Detroit Tigers on Wednesday in exchange for infield prospect Nick Quintana.

Barnhart, a 31-year-old left-handed hitter and reliable backstop, leaves Cincinnati after eight years. In the last six seasons, he led the Reds in starts behind the plate and innings caught, winning NL Gold Gloves in 2017 and 2020.

"Coming into this offseason, we knew that catcher was a priority position for us," Tigers general manager Al Avila said. "During our strategy meetings over the last couple of weeks in Lakeland with my front office staff, Tucker's name came up many times as an attractive option for our ballclub as someone who is a real plus defender, knows how to lead a pitching staff and is a solid contributor from the batter's box."

The rise of Reds rookie Tyler Stephenson, who split time behind the plate last season, made the 30-year-old Barnhart — and his contract — expendable. Barnhart has a $7.5 million option for 2022 with a $500,000 buyout.

Barnhart hit .247 with seven homers and 48 RBIs in 2021. Stephenson had a breakout season, hitting .286 with 10 homers and 45 RBIs.

In exchange, the Reds get the 24-year-old Quintana, who was a second-round pick of the Tigers in the 2019 amateur draft. In 2021, he hit .196 with nine homers for the Tigers' Low-A affiliate in Lakeland, Florida.

Reds general manager Nick Krall said trading Barnhart, one of the team's most popular players, was a difficult decision.

"But going into 2022, we must align our payroll to our resources and continue focusing on scouting and developing young talent from within our system," he said.

Barnhart, who gew up in Brownsburg, Indiana said it was bittersweet leaving the organization that drafted him but he is looking forward to playing in Detroit.

"This is an exciting time for a team that's undergone such a big transformation over the last few years," he said. "A.J. (Hinch) is one of the best managers in all of baseball, and I'm looking forward to working with him, the coaching staff and other teammates to bring the playoffs and a World Series championship back to the Motor City."

YIKES! Guess what is coming to a bank near you?

"Changes are coming to our banking system and to us, maybe it is time to embrace the future since the future is now." Steve Dybwad

Layin It On The Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

What appears to be foreign will become commonplace, and you might as well get ready for it. Cryptocurrencies and decentralized finance are all the rage right now, and you've probably heard of things like Bitcoin or Ethereum. However, the real story lies in the mechanism that drives these new technologies and forever changes the digital landscape. This is where blockchain enters the picture, the novel technology that enables things like cryptocurrency to exist in the way they do.

What is a blockchain, and what is with all the hype?

To put it simply, a blockchain is a type of digital database that can be used to catalog all kinds of information (e.g., money, goods, properties, services, and votes). Digital databases are powered by a network of computers that are either part of a centralized or decentralized network. A blockchain database is fundamentally different from a traditional database because instead of organizing data into tables, it creates blocks of data that are then chained together. Each of these blocks is timestamped and is connected to the chain before and after it.

Bitcoin uses blockchain to record peer-to-peer transactions through a distributed database. This distributed database exists between the computers of all users of the cryptocurrency. The idea is that having the database distributed amongst all the users allows for greater transparency and enhanced security. It gives users the ability to access, audit, trace, and verify digital assets without having to work through a middleman. By cutting down on intermediaries, blockchain cryptocurrencies put the power to control data back in consumers' hands.

Why are cryptocurrencies more secure?

The old adage "don't put all of your eggs in one basket" sums it up. Like banks and universities, many institutions that possess valuable and personal consumer information operate using a central database. This information is stored within a centralized network of computers that are housed in one location. All that data is controlled by one entity and is more vulnerable to hacks because it would require only a single point of failure to gain access. For a potential attacker to compromise a distributed database like Bitcoin, they would have to gain control of at least 50% of the computers within that network. Even then, the other 50% can fact check and sniff out discrepancies, making it very unlikely that a hack would ever occur.

Why is this important when it comes to managing digital assets?

No third-party involvement

Transactions of authenticated digital assets made via blockchain are typically available in 10 minutes

A traditional bank transaction can take 24 hours or more to complete, not including weekends and holidays

Blockchain technology guarantees the integrity of all the data through cryptography and through a distributed database

Why is this important to us now? This is the evolution of our data future, and the future of all banks is being reshaped by new technology and it is happening now.

Protecting and maintaining control of data is more critical now than ever. Just in the past few years, we have seen major companies like Facebook, LinkedIn, and Morgan Stanley impacted by massive data breaches affecting millions of users. Blockchain technology is making waves in the digital world by providing much needed security measures and by giving them the power to control data back to consumers.

Digital? Yes, your bank is now 100% digital; it is now our future. Be informed.

RODGERS

had he taken one of the vaccinations.

Many scientists, including three doctors who specialize in reproductive health vouched for the safety of vaccinations for couples who want to have a baby and urged people to seek out their doctors or nurse practitioners with any questions. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and obstetrician groups also recommend COVID-19 vaccines for pregnant individuals.

Dr. Stephanie Broadwell of Sanford Health Fargo, Dr. Stephanie Foughty of Altru Health Devils Lake and Dr. Ana Tobiaz of Sanford Health Bismarck said at a virtual North Dakota town hall in July to get the vaccine.

"I can understand that people are scared, people are nervous," Broadwell said. "I think sometimes there can be information that can be helpful and some that can be somewhat misleading. I think it's just really hard to digest all the information that is out there and stories that are filtering through that maybe even come from trusted sources."

Rodgers strongly questioned the NFL's protocols, along with any organization forcing health requirements on individuals.

"I believe strongly in bodily autonomy and the ability to make choices for your body, not to have to acquiesce to some woke culture or crazed group of individuals who say you have to do something," he said. "Health is not a one-size fits all for everybody, and for me it involved a lot of study in the offseason.

"If you weren't in the vaccinated category you were in a different category which involved some draconian measures and protocols you would have to adhere (to), which in my opinion were not based on science and were more based in a shame-based environment to try and get as many guys to get vaccinated as possible, so that the league looks better to the rest of the world. That was the focus of these protocols ..."

The NFL coronavirus protocols were developed in conjunction with CDC guidelines and independent infectious disease experts.

Down and now out: Receiver Beckham Jr. released by Browns

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND — Odell Beckham Jr.'s run his last route for the Browns. He's wide open now.

The polarizing wide receiver is being released by the Cleveland Browns, who are cutting ties with Beckham after a drama-filled stay that ended with him being told to stay home from practice.

Beckham's unceremonious exit — not completely official — came on Friday, his 29th birthday, and a few days after his father shared a video on social media highlighting times when Browns quarterback Baker Mayfield didn't throw passes to the three-time Pro Bowler.

It was a tipping point in the team's often-unstable relationship with him.

The Browns didn't appreciate the video or that Beckham didn't reach out to Mayfield, who said he was wiling to work things out.

Beckham was told not to report to practice for two days as his representation worked with Browns general manager Andrew Berry on agreeable financial terms for both sides in his departure.

"I don't think anyone envisioned when the organization traded for Odell three years ago that this would really be the resolution," Berry said. "It's unfortunate, but at the same time there are some situations in the NFL where things just don't quite work out and that's where we are today.
